Views of the MUSCLE SHOALS.

Copy of a letter from a respectable citizen of Tennessee, to a Representative in Congress

Summer County,

State of Tennessee, Dec. 1. 1815.

Sir—I was at the Muscle Shoals about the last of October, and I have been through a considerable part of Jackson and Meriwether's Purchase, from the Cherokees and Chickasaws, in the Muscle Shoal country, on both sides of the Tennessee river; and it is my opinion, that what land they have lately purchased on both sides of the river Tennessee, on the Mississippi territory, would have room enough for six counties, each to be as large as Madison county, and one with another to have as great a portion of fertile well lying land as Madison county has; that is, three counties on each side of the Tennessee, and would be equally productive for cotton, or any thing else that suits that desirable and fertile soil.
Madison is stated at twenty two miles square, and is reported to have produced ten thousand bales of cotton for market last year; and if the report is true, that that country nearly doubled any country of its size in the United States, in the production of cotton, and if the late purchase in the Mississippi territory on both sides of the Tennessee, is six times as large as Madison county, and was in an equal state of cotton cultivation, then the produce of both together would be twenty thousand bales of cotton, which is as much cotton as is manufactured at all the manufacturing establishments in the United States of America; which quantity of cotton, with the other produce of that country, would support an extensive and lucrative trade at a town or two near the lower end of the Muscle Shoals, where there would be a double demand for cotton; one for the export country trade, for the sale of the cotton in the middle and upper parts of the Ohio country, as well as for the settlements on the upper Mississippi and Missouri; the other at New Orleans, for exportation. Besides, the introduction of the Muscle Shoal country will derive great advantages from the Black Warrior and Ponce de Leon, and East Tennessee trade; and as for the route or routes for landing a town or towns near the lower end of the Muscle Shoals, I am informed that there is a good road for a town, and a large convenient spring, on the south side of the river, three miles below the Shoals; and four miles below the shoals, on the north side of the river, there is a good bluff for a town, with a large good spring called Sweet Water; but which of these places will have the most important town, may depend on circumstances that have not yet occurred; perhaps, some place not so much designed by nature for a commercial town as either of the two I have mentioned, may take the lead of them both. While I am writing about the Muscle Shoals, I will mention that I think Congress would do well to appropriate money for the purpose of clearing a navigable channel through the shoals; I think it would be of great public utility to the United States, as it would enhance the value of the public lands on both sides of the Tennessee, and also facilitate the transportation of troops and baggage, as well as artillery in time of low water, through the shoals to the lower country, in times of the most critical emergency. Respecting the country between the Tombigbee and the Canlando River, which has lately been made sale to the United States by Gen. Coffee and John Rhea, Esq. the only knowledge I have is from information obtained from Major Pytkland; he states that it contains a large portion of well lying fertile high land, well timbered and watered, besides rich cane bottoms on the rivers and large creeks; also, a grand saline, about fifteen miles above the junction of the Black Warrior and Tombigbee, between the two rivers, with a five miles of the Black Warrior. If the Choctaw nation could completely establish their claim to that country Congress could not obtain it from the Indians for one million dollars. I believe the best route for a grand canal to unite the extensive na-vigations of the Mobile and Tennessee rivers, would run along Jones's Valley, between the Great Falls of the Black Warrior and the Tennessee River. This valley is said to be so deep and level, that a canal would not require many locks or steam engines, to feed it. To conclude, it seems to be the opinion of many disinterested persons, that the volunteers and militia who served in the Creek war against Pensacola, or at New Orleans should, after the first sales of lands are over in the Mississippi territory be allowed the pre-emption right of entering lands there for twelve months; those who served sixty days, or three months, to enter one quarter section; and others in proportion to the time they served, as nearly as the Congress mode of letting out their lands would admit of with convenience. I should have no objection to a similar regulation extending to the Indiana state and Michigan territory, in favor of the North west militia & volunteers.
The north west army was said to have had the hardest fighting on the Niagara station; but where they have killed their hundreds, the south western troops have killed their thousands. I think that congress would do well to pass a law to direct the surveyor of public lands to lay off two sections of land on each side of the Tennessee river, at the places I have already named, as proper sites for a canal and for the lots I have already mentioned, in the Muscle Shoals country, in the Mississippi territory, with this exception, that the lots shall be sold for less than one hundred dollars an entered for a less sum.

Extraordinary Properties

Of Refined OX GALL.

No substance is of more importance in the arts than the Ox Gall. But hitherto, no method was known to prepare this substance a length of time entirely free from putridity and an offe-nseful smell. Mr. Tennant, Historical grave to the Queen of England, has been so fortunate as to discover a way refining Ox Gall, which renders it re-ceptible of a variety of useful applications.

The process is very simple—

Take a pint of fresh Ox Gall, boiled skimmed, put one ounce of alum in powdered; continue it on the fire untill combined; when cold put it into a tin, and cork it moderately close.

To another pint of fresh Ox Gall boiled and skimmed, put one ounce common salt, and continue it on the fire until combined; when cold put it into another bottle, and cork it moderately close.

The above preparations, after standing until they become perfectly clear, become decanted and combined into equal portions; a thick compound is then formed of the yellow coloring matter which precipitates leaving a colorless fluid, the colorless Ox Gall.

After the combinations of the two preparations, the process may be accomplished by filtering the liquid through fine Age renders this preparation most highly clear, and it at last seems to be an agreeable scent; nor has it been found to contract at any time an unpleasant smell, or to lose its useful properties.

Its most useful properties are the following—It combines with and fixes water colors, as they are usually prepared by being mixed with gum, or over them after they are laid upon paper. It renders blue, purple, &c green, and all other delicate colors, no bright and durable; and if a small quantity of it be added to any of the colors, causes them to wash more freely exactly over the surface of the paper.

Combined with Gum Arabic, it forms a tint without any unpleasant stains upon the surface of the canvas and prevents the Gum from cracking; the colors are so complete as fixed as paper itself, that subjects of these colors washed over them, without any risk either becoming foul, or forming improbable combinations with the water colors.

Combined with fine in a black, to form water, it forms a com- ete solution for lead and ink.

If it be floated over the surface of drawings made with chalks, or black lead pencil; it fixes them firmly; and they then be washed over with any water previously mixed with a portion of it, without in the least degree discoloring the chalks or black lead.

For miniature painting, being washed over the surface of the ivory it completely removes its greasiness; and being mixed with the colors, it causes them to fast freely therein, and it may be over tinted, the colors being thick the ivory.

For transparency, dried paper, being first washed over with the refined or permitted to dry water colors and with some of it, will be freely and perfectly smooth upon it, and be so fixed not to wash up by the repetition of different glazings of colors, over each thus producing depth of color.

ROBBERY.

On the night of the 6th of December 1816, the Exchange Office of the American Bank, Bridge street, Georgetown, for some time by a false key was robbed of the following property, in specie, consisting of dollars, change, American and English gold, about 200 dollars; bank notes, mostly three dollar notes of the bank of Washington, and some smaller tickets, together about 50 dollars; a one pound note of the bank of England, and one hundred and sixty four lottery tickets as per numbers below. The latter tickets can be of no use to the persons taking them, and an attempt to pass them would only lead to a detection, it is therefore hoped that the person or persons who took them, will return them to the subscriber through the Post Office at Georgetown. A liberal Reward will be paid by the subscriber for any information that may lead to the discovery of the persons or a recovery of the property. All keepers of lottery offices in the United States will please to keep a list of the numbers of the following tickets, as they may lead to a discovery of the theft.
